Records Management Seminar-Workshop

R A T I O N A L E

Records management is undoubtedly an integral part of every organization, public or private. It is the center of operation by reason of its inherent functions. Mismanagement of records may result in inefficiency and ineffectiveness of every office. Records as working tools are valuable and, therefore should be used effectively.

The creation, maintenance, retirement and disposition of records are costly hence, all officials and employees should see to it that records management activities are done with maximum economy, efficiency and effectiveness.

However, it has been found that the implementation of the Integrated Reorganization Plan in 1975 resulted in the assignment of several new Records Officers in the regional offices, majority of whom are new in the position and have had no training in Records Management. They have found themselves at a loss, more often than not when problems in records keeping and disposition occur.

This seminar-workshop has been conceived to, hopefully, create solutions to problems in records management obtaining in the central and regional offices for better coordination and effective work performance. It is intended to provide basic techniques and working guides in the field of records management to enable the participants to acquire the skills, attitudes and know-how necessary to overcome satisfactorily the everyday problems in records management.

COURSE CONTENT

This course is divided into two phases: Part I, which provides the theoretical framework of the system and Part II, which gives practical activities and opportunity to the participants to visit some offices under this Ministry. The following are the topics for the course:
