UNIT III Module 2 Responding to Personal Problems

Overview

What do you usually do when you face problems in life? Do you quit? Or do you face the problems head on?

We all experience problems in life. Of course, they can make us feel down but they make life more exciting and more meaningful. Without them life can be boring.

The way you respond to your problems is a reflection of your good judgment, and your capacity to wrestle with and solve problems. Your quickness to recognize a problem and to analyze the possible steps to solve it are evidences of your intelligence. They also reveal your ability to adjust to different situations in life. These types of behavior will help you solve problems.

This module offers a lot of ideas about responding to day-to-day challenges. I hope that you will get the most of it.

Objectives

After working on the activities in this module, you will be able to give reactions to what was listened to.

determine a person's attitude toward an issue.

point out problem-solution relationships.

infer character traits, feelings and motives.

use context clues to arrive at the meaning of words.

express reactions using special expressions that clarify intentions.

narrate events using the past perfect tense of the verb.

write a letter to communicate thoughts, feelings, observations, and needs.

Instructions

- 1. Do not write anything on this module as several students will be using it. Do all your work in your notebook. Be sure to label your work by the module number and title. Keep a separate notebook for your Reflective Journal.
- 2. Read each section carefully. If you have not read the first two sections, go over them first.
- 3. Each module begins with a brief introduction or Overview followed by a list of Objectives you are expected to learn.
 - 4.Before working on the activities, answer the Pretest first. Find out how well you did by checking your answer against the answers given under the Self-check of the pretest.
- 5. As you work on the activities, try to relate them to the objectives of this module. What skill or strategy does the activity develop?
- 6. After each activity go over the Self-check that follows to find out how well you fared in that activity. Pay attention to the items you missed. Learn from your mistakes.
- 7. After working on all the activities take the Posttest.

For sure you want to feel great and be smart. Then you have to start with something challenging.

I. Reading

Read the paragraph carefully before you write the letter of the word or group of words that completes each of the following sentences. Write your answers in your notebook.

1.) Reading Adventure

It may be a big deal for you to determine or to point out clearly problem-solution relationship in a selection you are reading. Spotting problems and relating them to solution is an important skill you can't do without since it gives you the chance to become an intelligent reader. You should know how to locate words that serve as clues to problems and solutions presented. You should carefully examine these words for they will lead you to relate problems with solutions.

Pre-reading

Problems or Solutions?

Read the following statements and tell whether it is a problem or a solution.

- 1. Write a letter to a friend.
 - 2. You missed your friend who has moved away.
 - 3. Ask for guidance from your parents.
 - 4. You think a certain law is unfair to the majority.
- _____ 5. Try to get somebody to help you.
 - 6. Call a friend to assist you.
 - 7. There's a fuel shortage.
 - 8. You don't know what to do about your project.
 - 9. It's the hottest summer.
 - 10. Involve in a cleanliness drive.

If you're interested in reading letters in an agony column of a magazine or a newspaper, you'll probably react positively to this one. Let's have a little secret here! Read the letter to find out what Sarah had decided to do. Then, answer the following questions.

I write this letter to you to seek your help about my problem. I cry easily and often because life hasn't been easy for me. I still think of my mom whom I lost when I was five years old. I grew up with two older brothers who didn't care much about me. My father was either busy at home or at work, or out of town most of the time. I had learned to either sink or swim until my father remarried again. He gave me a stepmother who oftentimes, is even more difficult to deal with. I started to think of running away from home.

Then, I lost my father in a shattering tragedy. I have had anxiety attacks since then. I wallowed in self-pity. I lost my interest in my studies and became more insecure. I tried to stop these patterns because I had realized that if you thought something's going to end badly, it would.

Now, I'm fourteen and I still can't get over the sad experiences. I don't have somebody whom I can consider a real friend and to whom I can pour out my feelings. What will I do?

Sincerely, Sarah

Ouestions:

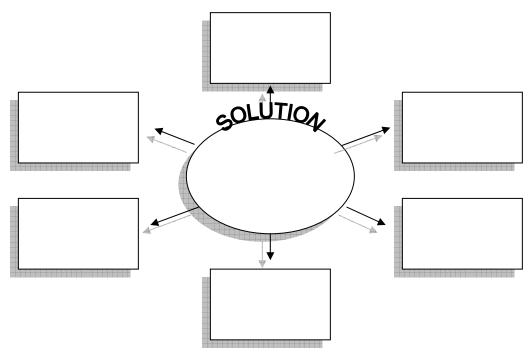

- 1. What is Sarah's problem?
- 2. How did Sarah feel about her problem?
- 3. Why did she feel that way?
- 4. What did she do to solve her problem?
- 5. Why did she write the letter?

Post Reading

Activity 1

In your notebook, make a problem-solution web/map as shown below. Fill in the squares with the series of problems met by Sarah. Then, think of a solution which you feel can solve her problems. Consider this question! What should Sarah do? Write your solution inside the circle.

In your notebook, copy the character's analysis chart as shown below. Complete it by supplying the entries being called for. Base your answers on the information in Sarah's letter.

Activity 2

Character: Sarah
Actions	Thoughts	Feelings	Traits Revealed
Cries easily	Wanted to run away from home.Lost interest in her studies.	 Had anxiety attacks Had no friends Wallowed in self-pity Can't get over sad experiences. 	Weak Pessimistic Unfriendly

Activity 3. Recalling Experiences

After hearing from Sarah, it's now your turn to tell your own experiences. There's nothing more engaging than recalling the experiences you've had as a teenager or a young adult. Can you remember them? Write briefly your different experiences in the spaces provided.

How did you react in those situations?

GRAMMAR

When you narrate events or happenings, you present a series of actions. These series of actions which happened in the past occurred one after the other. To express these actions clearly, you can use the "had" tense or the past perfect tense. This is when you relate or combine two past actions – one started and finished before another past action occurred.

Activity 1

Consider these sentences. Find out which is the first or earlier past action and which is the second or later past action in each sentence.

	a. first or earlier past action =b. second or later past action =
2.	Gloria had done everything to solve her problem when he offered his help	١.
	a. first or earlier past action =b. second or later past action =
3.	After he had given suggestions, I realized my weaknesses.
	 a. first or earlier past action = b. second or later past action =

1. My friend had been very cheerful before she met this guy.

Activity 2

Study the sentences again, and answer the following questions

- 1. What form of the verb is used to express
 - a. the first or earlier past action?
 - b. the second or later past action?
- 2. What word introduces the first or earlier past action in sentence 3?
- 3. Which past action is introduced by either "before" or "when"?

Remember

- → The past perfect tense is used to express two past actions.- one started and finished before another occurred.
- → The past perfect form is had + past participle of the verb. It is used to express the earlier past action.
- → The second past action is expressed in the simple past form.

Activity 3

Here is an excerpt from a speech delivered by a sophomore student. Give the correct form of the verb in parentheses.

We 1. (listen) to a talk by our classmate about generation gap before I 2. (realize) it was an excellent one. After it 3 (focus) on an interesting and important problem, a student 4 (react). She said that our parents had traditional education, that's why they could not have peaceful lives with their children. She added that they had not stopped criticizing their behavior. I felt lucky that my parents 5. (teach) me good manners. I remember how my parents 6. (allow) me to express my views and opinions before they 7. (give) theirs. Afterwards, they 8. (let) me choose what I had thought was right then they 9. (give) their own solutions to the problems at hand. It 10. (work) well. This generation gap problem can be solved by love and understanding between parents and children.

Activity 4

Combine each pair of sentences below. Use the past perfect tense

Example: a. They forgave each other.

b. They decided to call it guits.

Answers: They had forgiven each other before they decided to call it quits.

- 1. a. Tina replied.
 - b. Jake sent Tina a dozen text messages.
- 2. a. He ignored her presence.
 - b. She started shouting.

- 3. a. She kept on worrying a lot.
 - b. I asked her to pray.
- 4. a. We heard the comments.
 - b. We decided to call a meeting.
- 5. a. The group finished eating.
 - b. They saw dark smoke outside.

- 1. a. 1^{st} or earlier action = My partner had been very cheerful b. 2^{nd} or later past action = she met this guy
- 2. a. 1st past action = She had done everything to solve her problem b. 2nd past action = he offered his help
- 3. a. 1^{st} past action = He had given suggestions b. 2^{nd} past action = I realized my weaknesses

Activity 2

- 1. a. first or earlier past action = had + past participle of the verb
 - b. second or later past action = simple past form
- 2. The word "after" introduces the first past action.
- 3. The second past action can be introduced by either "before" or "when".

Activity 3

- had listened (1st past action)
 realized (2nd past action)
- 3. had focused (1st past action)
 4. reacted (2nd past action)
- 5. had thought (1st action)

- 6. had allowed (1st past action)

Writing A Letter of Advice

Writing a letter of advice to someone who asks for it is a good way of letting the other person know that you care for him or her. It is a sweet and thoughtful way of offering our help in solving someone else's problem with sincerity. The letter may give enlightenment to the other as well as moral support.

Parts of a Letter

Do you remember the parts of a friendly letter? What are they?

If your answer is heading, greeting, body, closing, and signature, you're absolutely right. Each part has a purpose. The heading gives the address of the sender and the date the letter was written. The greeting or salutation states the name of the person addressed. The body is, of course, the content of the letter. The closing ends the letter, and the signature tells who the sender is.

The following is the form of a friendly letter.

		(Heading)
,	(Greeting)
		Body of the letter)
		-)
		, (Closing) (Signature)
		(Signature)

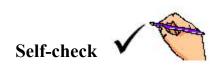

Practice writing a friendly letter by doing the following activities.

Activity 1 Organizing a Letter

Plot out the following items in letter form.

November 10, 2006 Jake Blk. 9 Lot 2 Always, Blue Subdivision Dear Angel, Tanza, Cavite

It's a good thing you are aware of the situation you are in. Your acceptance that it had been your fault why you are in that situation is a good sign. That means..... (incomplete body of a letter)

Read the letter below. Find out if you plotted the parts of the letter well. The whole body of the letter is given.

Blk. 2 Lot 9 Blue Subdivision Tanza, Cavite November 10, 2006

Dear Angel,

It's a good thing you are aware of the situation you're in. Your acceptance that it had been your fault that you are in that situation is a good sign. That means you are willing to do something to improve your life. Let's say it won't be easy but if you're willing, nothing is impossible. You still can break your bad habit little by little. With your determination, you can be successful in finding solutions to your own problems. Why don't you try prayer first? Then, do things as planned.

God Bless!

Always, Jake

Activity 2

- 1. What is the letter about?
- 2. Who is the sender?
- 3. Who is the person addressed?
- 4. When did the letter sender write the letter?
- 5. If the addressee wants to reply, where should she send the letter?
- 6. What is the purpose of the sender?
- 7. What kind of relationship exists between the sender and the addressee?

Pretend that you have an advice column for a teen-age magazine. Write an advice to a reader or letter sender whose problem has to do with having a gap with her parents. Remember to include these points in your letter.

- a. The problem to be solved.
- b. The purpose or reason for writing the letter.
- c. Comment on the reaction of the letter sender to the problem.
- d. Suggestions or solutions offered.

Activity 4

Read your letter twice. Reflect on the questions in Activity 2 and the important points of consideration in Activity 3. Add needed information; use polite words; and, have a good beginning and closure to your letter. Check your spelling, punctuation marks, capitalization and grammar. Polish your work.

Activity 2

- 1. It is about Jake's advice to Angel.
- 2. Jake.
